

Cyclone: Classroom Coding Competition 2017 Terms and Conditions

1. The competition is open to all teachers working at a New Zealand NZQA approved institution. Proof of status will be required prior to a prize being awarded.
2. The content submitted for consideration must have been produced using an Apple Mac and/ or an iPad and Swift Playgrounds and/or Xcode, and be submitted to the web site (and or via flash media) as indicated, by 4pm on 31st August 2017 with the information required to participate in this competition.
3. The submitted contents will remain the property of the author but will be made available to Cyclone Computer Company Ltd (Cyclone) and their staff and Apple staff for purposes of showing other teachers exemplary NZ produced classroom coding materials.
4. Any copyright/ intellectual property issues related to the submitted content will be waived by the submitting teacher to enable sharing with other teachers. All materials submitted must be the original work of the submitting teacher.
5. The submitted content will be assessed and judged by a panel of professionals whose decision as to prize distribution will be final and no correspondence will be entered into.
6. The assessment criteria will include: creativeness, appropriateness to the NZ curricula/ courses and level, engagement of users, design and usefulness of materials for other NZ teachers and/ or students to encourage coding in the classroom.
7. Content may only be submitted under one year group division.
8. More than one submission may be entered by a teacher.
9. Joint authorship of submitted materials is acceptable, but only one prize will be awarded to any winning submission.
10. Cyclone reserves the right not to award prizes should the number or quality submitted in any division not warrant such an award.
11. Any change in these terms and conditions may be made and posted online

(www.cyclone.co.nz/codingclassrooms) prior to the closure of the programme.

12. Announcement of any winners will be made as soon as practical after the closure of submissions and winners will be notified.
